FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sermon Discussion Questions:

"The People of the Lamb"
11/01/26

- How does Revelation's picture of a countless, diverse multitude worshiping God change the way we imagine the church?
- Clint describes saints as ordinary people who keep choosing Jesus. How does that differ from thinking of holiness as exceptional ability or perfection?
- What difference does it make to read Revelation for its hope and vision of worship rather than mainly as a puzzle about the future?
- The sermon says the worldwide church does not join us; we join it. How might that perspective shape our congregation's humility and relationships?
- What can quiet acts of patience, forgiveness, compassion, or refusing to hate reveal about Jesus that impressive religious achievements might not?
- How does the promise that God will shelter his people and wipe away their tears speak to the call to remain faithful through difficulty?
- As we give thanks for ordinary examples of faith, what is one concrete way we could keep choosing Jesus in the week ahead?
